

Matthew Feldman

Raised outside of Boston by two classical musicians, Matthew Feldman chose to follow his brother, Alex, into the restaurant industry. From a young age Matthew had been groomed to follow his father into the world of music, but ultimately chose to pursue a culinary career.

Matthew attended Johnson and Wales University in Providence, Rhode Island, earning a degree in culinary arts and business management. While in Providence he worked at the renowned Al Forno, where he began his education in Italian food and wine. Soon after graduation, Mathew moved to Vail, Colorado to pursue his newfound passion for snowboarding in a town where he could continue his education in fine dining. This led him to Larkspur restaurant.

At Larkspur, Matthew soon showed the diversity of his talents. He began his tenure in Vail serving tables, but because of his culinary skills, he was soon called to action in the kitchen. After that he quickly moved up to bartending and management. Matthew ended his career at Larkspur as the Dining Director and has brought everything that he has learned to Alba.

Enticed to move to Boulder by his brother, Alex, Matthew comes to Alba equipped with an expertise in fine dining, a youthful and energetic spirit and a natural sense of hospitality. “Everyone who walks through our door is my personal guest. My greatest pleasure is the look of satisfaction on our guests’ faces when they say goodbye.”

Matthew is passionate about great service and creating positive guest experiences. His goal at Alba is to provide a friendly, fun and relaxing environment so that every guest can enjoy great food, superb wine and excellent company.

Matthew looks forward to meeting you the next time you dine with us.
